The 2011 Southern Miss Trombone Day Mass Choir

The University of Alabama Trombone Choir:

Dr. Jon Whitaker, Conductor

The University of Alabama Trombone Choir is designed to serve as a pedagogical extension of the Trombone Studio giving students the opportunity to apply skills learned in lessons to a musical setting. The choir is a very active part of the School of Music at Alabama performing regular concerts on campus as well as several outreach concerts a year including performing at UA athletic events and gigs by the jazz trombone ensemble the Crimson Slides. The Trombone Choir performed at the 2010 Eastern Trombone Workshop in Washington, DC as has been invited to play at the 2011 International Trombone Festival in Nashville, TN.

The Southern Miss Trombone Choir

Dr. Ben McIlwain, Conductor

Numbering between 16 and 25 members, The Southern Miss Trombone Choir includes undergraduate and graduate student trombonists performing on alto, tenor and bass trombones. Typical performances include campus concerts, the All-South Honor Band Festival, and other regional appearances at local churches and schools. In addition to performing a wide variety of standard literature, the Choir remains committed to seeking out new works for trombone choir by upcoming composers and student composers.
